

Lowell Gunter

Groundwater Technician

Lowell Gunter was employed by the North Carolina Rural Water Association (NCRWA) as a Groundwater Technician on February 16, 1999 and continues in this position to present. Lowell worked in the State Revolving Fund (SRF) Wellhead Protection Program from February 1999 to May 2004. In June 2004, Lowell moved into the EPA Wellhead Protection Program.

During this time period Lowell has completed all contract requirements.

Lowell has completed the required course work and has obtained his C-Well and C-Distribution certification.

Lowell is a graduate of East Carolina University with a BS degree in Science Education. Following his graduation, Lowell later continued post-graduate studies at Campbell University, receiving his Masters of Education in Intermediate Education and he also received a Masters degree in Administration and Curriculum Specialist.

Lowell has attended numerous water quality, operational, lab and safety seminars. He attended the Institute of Government and other related management seminars. He holds a N.C. A-Surface certification.

Lowell served a three year enlistment with the U.S. Army where his Military Occupation Specialist (MOS) was in the field of Stock Control and Accounting Specialist and Personnel Specialist between 1969 and 1971.